

Blakiston's fish owl is known by such names as kotan-kor-kamuy and kamuy-cikap, and it is a special kamuy who protects villages. It is also held to be a spirit-deity that brings fish to humans and other living things. There are many stories (oral literature) called kamuy yukar, oyna, and tuitak in which the Blakiston's fish owl appears, and easy-to-understand picture books for children are also available, so do be sure to look for them. The actual owl is a large bird with a wingspan of close to two meters, but here it has been reduced to a size that you can place on the palm of your hand. (The size of the finished craft is about 8 cm high.) Why not display this spirit-deity of family protection in your own home?
